Profile

At InCode Group, I worked for about a year, primarily developing websites using React and Next.js. Then, I joined the Defense Forces, where I served for almost two years. During that time, of course, I was focused on other duties and wasn't coding. After being discharged from the military, I returned to my previous job and am now in the process of refreshing everything I knew. I'm working with the same tech stack listed in my skills and planning to learn Node.js, as I aim to become a full-stack developer.

I'm looking for a company that will hire me and provide opportunities for growth. Working solo is fine, but having someone who can point out my code and explain what's wrong is much more beneficial.

From my side, I guarantee decency, punctuality, meeting deadlines, and bringing result to your team.
